

As the UK's largest redistributor of surplus food and products, we are fully focused on being part of the national response to combat the Coronavirus crisis.

We are scaling up our operations to further support your industry at this unprecedented time.

We have the national scale, technical capacity and capability to effectively respond to the volatility in the supply chain – helping to protect your revenue.

We also have direct distribution channels into frontline workers (NHS, emergency service and FMCG), and to some of the UK's most disadvantaged communities through our social enterprise Community Shop – helping to maximise social impact.

We want to help you, and we want to help you to help others. We can do this by:

Purchasing your surplus stock, providing a financial return on valuable stock that may otherwise go to waste.

Safely and compliantly responding to the volatility in the supply chain.

We have the scale, flexibility and national coverage to respond to the stock challenges you are facing – whether it's a significant drop in demand or increased pressure on very specific lines.

Handling pretty much any surplus stock that is meant to be eaten, used or worn.

We can take work-in progress, ingredients and products out of finished packaging. We will provide full product traceability and brand protection, whilst maintaining the highest standards of food safety.

Getting your surplus stock to the frontline workers in our hospitals, emergency services and within our supply chains

– our members, and the heroes keeping the show on the road. All stock is deeply discounted, helping to stretch family budgets at this difficult time.

Ensuring your surplus reaches the people who need it most, through Community Shop.

You can donate your surplus stock to help us provide food and essential products for vulnerable individuals and families in our communities.

We have a sustainable surplus solution for almost all types of stock and have well-established distribution channels to ensure you are reaching the front-line workers and people who need support the most.
